Yup, gotta turn everything over to the corporations. People are here only to serve big business. Been going on in the US since the late 70's, now moving overseas.

Wow, that's really messed up!

We just have to track this & remember in this country especially, knowledge is power. We have the Senate & Congress to protect us from corporations. If you enjoy using vitamins & supplements (I do), get politically involved. When 'food safety' bills are on the docket, call, write, & email your local senator/congressman. They do want to keep their jobs, lol.

The Senators and Congressmen sell us down the river pretty much everytime they vote. They are not interested in protecting us from corporatios, cause it's the corporations that fund their campaigns, and their lobby groups that insure everyone of them walk away millionaires.

I know there are some bad people out there, but I just have to believe that if you get involved enough they have to pay attention. After all, corporations can't legally buy votes & if enough legitimate citizens showed up on election day then it would make it so much harder for the criminals committing voter registration fraud. Honestly, we should be petitioning to make these criminals guilty of treason, because it undermines our democracy. I digress from my point which is that we need to show up on election day!

Actually they can. The Supreme Court ruled this year that corporations do have a political say.

And here in the U.S. Codex may not even require implementation by congressional vote, but could be implemented by the Executive Order Obama passed back in June, discussed in This Post

Unfortunately, the corporations are donating to 501© organizations. They can keep their donors anonymous.
