

Forum: Pheromone Reviews - Real People - Real Reviews - Real Pheromones

Thread: Hello from Germany

bmm - June 20, 2013, 8:38 pm

Hi everyone. I found this forum some weeks ago and read a lot until now, but it's so much information to find what are you looking for.

I'm 32 years old and would say, that I don't have problems to talk with women. The problem I have is, that I'm always just a (very) good friend for them. They can talk with me about everything and have fun with me, but go home with someone else. Maybe I can change this with the help of the members of the forum. So, primarily I'm looking for a relationship.

I'll keep on reading the next days/weeks and probably come back with a new thread, which shall help newbies like me to find information faster then now. What I mean is, what different pheromones you have to use for the different aims (relationship/sexual contacts/success on work) in different locations (office, clubs, shopping, ...). This shall be more a general overview and not just for a few products. What do you think, it it a good idea? Or do you say every new person here asks the same question what and how much to use and you are bored to answer this? What I miss is an independent thread about the different products from different companies. I already ordered some products like Aqua Vitae from the reviews I read here. But I had no hits until now as far as I know. Or how do I know if it was a hit because of the pheromones? I also get often smilings from girls I don't know, even I don't wear any pheromones and haven't spoken to them.

You'll hear from me soon again.

Best regards from Germany

Fleur - June 20, 2013, 9:04 pm

Welcome to the forum!

I'm sure guys here will answer your questions.

As for the hits, mones can be very subtle and you won't notice much anything, but also can make people act way out of the ordinary so that you'll have no doubt it was a hit. In any case you should just relax and act like the guy every girl wants, and people will eventually pick up on that. Mones just enhance and amplify the effect, not change who you are

NuTriX - June 21, 2013, 10:55 am

Welcome bmm

We're a pretty helpful crew here on PT and most will be happy to answer any questions you may have. We understand the excitement of most, but will always encourage personal reading and research...people just absorb things better when the put some person effort into it rather than being spoon fed. PLUS pheromone use is SO much bigger than "getting the girl" for those interested in exploration. Great opportunities in social, work, personal, familial growth. It's crazy cool stuff! And it's a science as much as t is fun!

I like your idea (from a new user's perspective) of creating a thread for things that some of the rest of us already consider the basics and probably don't even think about. I think a great addition to a glossary of mones would be how the molecules are expected perform...not sure if we have something like all in one place - like a list - although the single molecules and research forum cover it in detail if you're willing to wade around in the pool

Look forward to "seeing" you around!

komax19 - June 21, 2013, 11:14 am

Welcome Bmm !! Enjoy your journey!

bmm - June 22, 2013, 5:05 am

Thank you for the warm welcome. I really appreciate it. I'm looking forward to learn more and share my own experiences.

Special thank you to NuTrix. I like your idea too.

Btw. is there a way to edit my own posts? This would be very helpful when I try to summarize the answers.

mark-in-dallas - June 22, 2013, 3:05 pm

Welcome to PheroTruth bmm! In answer to your question: Members can edit their posts until replies are made after that post, then can no longer be edited. There is an exception made for and threads in the Member JOurnals and Trading Post forums, to allow the thread authors to edit any of their posts at any time.

As far as the idea of a newbie thread listing or suggesting which products can be used for specific situations, you are welcome to create one and I commend you for being willing to put forth the effort to do so, but don't actually like the idea for a couple of reasons:

1. If we make it too easy for people they aren't likely to put in any further effort in learning how to test and use products to get the most out of them.
2. Listing various products from various companies for use in specific situations all in one place could easily appear as being biased, unless every product from every company for every purpose were listed.

AlternativeGirl - June 22, 2013, 3:10 pm

(06-21-2013 5:55 AM)NuTrix Wrote: I like your idea (from a new user's perspective) of creating a thread for things that some of the rest of us already consider the basics and probably don't even think about.

See the sticky threads at the top of the Men's and Women's subforums here. They cover "Noob Basics" very well.

(06-21-2013 5:55 AM)NuTrix Wrote: I think a great addition to a glossary of mones would be how the molecules are expected perform...not sure if we have something like all in one place - like a list - although the single molecules and research forum cover it in detail if you're willing to wade around in the pool

Mark set up a "Phero Wiki" for PheroTruth because everyone agrees that having said glossary would be helpful. But wiserd is the only member to my knowledge who has yet to contribute anything to it.

In the past I referred one member to these wikis to help her find info to flesh out her spread sheet.

http://www.lovepotionperfume.com/reading_room/articles/PheroWiki

<http://hackingthehive.com/wiki/main/pheromones/>

Hope this info is useful.

Edited to add: I guess the hacking the hive wiki is gone now so here is a new wiki that is basically the same thing.

<http://Pheromones.net/categories/molecules>

meme371 - June 22, 2013, 3:14 pm

Hi bmm welcome to pherotruth. I got this from discoverxs.com forum posted by Quicksilver. I hope this helps and you will also find out more from reading the threads and posts here

As this is to be a more scientifically oriented forum, it seems a consensus should be reached, or at least a discussion started, on possible behaviors / changes in appearance that can be regarded as responses to pheromones.

My understanding is that body language OUTSIDE OF BASELINE is what matters, not normal day-to-day behaviors.

Listed below is a slightly modified list post of mine from another well known forum. Credit goes to Jasmin from that forum

- Yawning: sudden yawning as if tired or very relaxed, and then resume the other signs of arousal
- Tongue & Lip Action: Lots of extending tongues and licking lips, especially as after initial exposure (in as little as 5 seconds)
- Biting Lips: Curling lips inward and tightly due to intense feelings
- Hair Flipping, Brushing, and Tossing: Spontaneous and wild brushing and flipping of the hair
- Crossing Legs: Frequent crossing and uncrossing of legs back and forth
- Opened Legs: Sitting with legs wide open or leaning far forward on the seat
- Squeezed Legs: Bringing the legs together suddenly and squeezing them shut
- Busy Legs: Rocking back and forth, changing leg stances nonstop, hopping back & forth on legs
- Nervous Legs: Rocking crossed legs while sitting, standing on toes, shaking up and down
- Syntribution: look up the word "syntribute"• I won't explain here.
- Offset Butts: Butts shifted excessively to one side of the seat
- Leg Twitching: Legs and hips/butt twitching suddenly
- Body Twitching: Body flinches and twitches suddenly (jolts of intense sensations)
- Head Rolling: Head leaning far back and eyes closed, as if in a sexually intense, relaxed position
- Body Stretching: Extending the whole body out and stretching
- Skin Flush: The face, chest or skin become flushed and very red (blushing to outright lobster red)
- Sighing & Deep Breathing: Heavy breathing as if overwhelmed by intense sensations
- Fluttering Eyes: Eyes roll back and/or flutter wildly
- Fiddling: Playing with jewelry or clothing or fiddling their fingers nonstop to distract attention
- Bags on Laps: Use of bags to cover stirring sensations and reactions in the crotch area
- Make Up: Suddenly feels the need to put on make up or perfume
- Flexing the Body: Double handed grabbing of or leaning back from poles in flagrant ways
- Suppressed Smiles & Grins: Trying to shyly conceal arousal with a suppressed grin
- Running Away: Several subjects have gotten up from seats or walked away after too much excitement and arousal was built up!
- Thermogenesis: The subject generates a lot of heat from excitement, and starts removing or loosening layers of clothing to compensate
- Looking Up & Behind: Really bizarre reaction - women will look up and behind them, as if someone was talking to them from there

The Blank Stare: Becoming subdued and quiet suddenly, looking down or forward

Talking to Oneself: This is when the subject starts talking to herself as if in disbelief that she is getting so horny

Showing flesh: Lifting up her dress to show you her legs or down to show you her butt. Yanking on her collar, opening her blouse a little. She often does this stuff even more covertly than she covers skin, so you really have to develop the skill to see this. Also, be aware that sometimes what looks like covering skin is actually showing OTHER skin. Keep that in mind. Look for the actual motive. When she covers her skin because she is cold or uncomfortable, she will strive to cover all her skin instead covering up some by revealing other skin.

Burning the VNO: This is probably one of the most unusual effects - Some subjects will exhibit a suddenly burning or rushing sensation in part of their nose, yet it has nothing to do with smell. They react suddenly for a few seconds, and then everything is normal again except for the building arousal of course ... I think it's somehow affecting some part of the nose that's sensitive to pheromones.

AlternativeGirl - June 22, 2013, 3:45 pm

(06-22-2013 10:10 AM)AlternativeGirl Wrote: Edited to add: I guess the hacking the hive wiki is gone now so here is a new wiki that is basically the same thing.

<http://Pheromones.net/categories/molecules>

Nevermind. Now the pheromones.net link isn't working for me. However, if I click the hacking the hive link then it redirects me to pheromones.net which has the link to the wiki on the right hand side under "pheromone molecules"

bmm - June 22, 2013, 5:12 pm

(06-22-2013 10:05 AM)mark-in-dallas Wrote: As far as the idea of a newbie thread listing or suggesting which products can be used for specific situations, you are welcome to create one and I commend you for being willing to put forth the effort to do so, but don't actually like the idea for a couple of reasons:

1. If we make it too easy for people they aren't likely to put in any further effort in learning how to test and use products to get the most out of them.

2. Listing various products from various companies for use in specific situations all in one place could easily appear as being biased, unless every product from every company for every purpose were listed.

Mark, I fully respect your point of view. So I won't make one big thread which contains everything. I'll try to group my questions into single threads where we can discuss them there. As soon as I can create my own journal (also can't read the journals from the others at the moment), I'll take the answers from the single threads and put it with my own experiences into my journal. Then this is my complete learning process from a newbie to hopefully a pro some day. Because it is documented in the journal, everyone can read it.

Is this a better solution for you?

bmm - June 22, 2013, 5:18 pm

(06-22-2013 10:14 AM)meme371 Wrote: Hi bmm welcome to pherotruth. I got this from discoverxs.com forum posted by Quicksilver. I hope this helps and you will also find out more from reading the threads and posts here

As this is to be a more scientifically oriented forum, it seems a consensus should be reached, or at least a discussion started, on possible behaviors / changes in appearance that can be regarded as responses to pheromones.

My understanding is that body language OUTSIDE OF BASELINE is what matters, not normal day-to-day behaviors.

Listed below is a slightly modified list post of mine from another well known forum. Credit goes to Jasmin from that forum

Yawning: sudden yawning as if tired or very relaxed, and then resume the other signs of arousal

Tongue & Lip Action: Lots of extending tongues and licking lips, especially as after initial exposure (in as little as 5 seconds)

Biting Lips: Curling lips inward and tightly due to intense feelings

Hair Flipping, Brushing, and Tossing: Spontaneous and wild brushing and flipping of the hair

Crossing Legs: Frequent crossing and uncrossing of legs back and forth

Opened Legs: Sitting with legs wide open or leaning far forward on the seat

Squeezed Legs: Bringing the legs together suddenly and squeezing them shut

Busy Legs: Rocking back and forth, changing leg stances nonstop, hopping back & forth on legs

Nervous Legs: Rocking crossed legs while sitting, standing on toes, shaking up and down

Syntribution: look up the word "syntribute" • I won't explain here.

Offset Butts: Butts shifted excessively to one side of the seat

Leg Twitching: Legs and hips/butt twitching suddenly

Body Twitching: Body flinches and twitches suddenly (jolts of intense sensations)

Head Rolling: Head leaning far back and eyes closed, as if in a sexually intense, relaxed position

Body Stretching: Extending the whole body out and stretching

Skin Flush: The face, chest or skin become flushed and very red (blushing to outright lobster red)

Sighing & Deep Breathing: Heavy breathing as if overwhelmed by intense sensations

Fluttering Eyes: Eyes roll back and/or flutter wildly

Fiddling: Playing with jewelry or clothing or fiddling their fingers nonstop to distract attention

Bags on Laps: Use of bags to cover stirring sensations and reactions in the crotch area

Make Up: Suddenly feels the need to put on make up or perfume

Flexing the Body: Double handed grabbing of or leaning back from poles in flagrant ways

Suppressed Smiles & Grins: Trying to shyly conceal arousal with a suppressed grin

Running Away: Several subjects have gotten up from seats or walked away after too much excitement and arousal was built up!

Thermogenesis: The subject generates a lot of heat from excitement, and starts removing or loosening layers of clothing to compensate

Looking Up & Behind: Really bizarre reaction - women will look up and behind them, as if someone was talking to them from there

The Blank Stare: Becoming subdued and quiet suddenly, looking down or forward

Talking to Oneself: This is when the subject starts talking to herself as if in disbelief that she is getting so horny

Showing flesh: Lifting up her dress to show you her legs or down to show you her butt. Yanking on her collar, opening her blouse a little. She often does this stuff even more covertly than she covers skin, so you really have to develop the skill to see this. Also, be aware that sometimes what looks like covering skin is actually showing OTHER skin. Keep that in mind. Look for the actual motive. When she covers her skin because she is cold or uncomfortable, she will strive to cover all her skin instead covering up some by revealing other skin.

Burning the VNO: This is probably one of the most unusual effects - Some subjects will exhibit a suddenly burning or rushing sensation in part of their nose, yet it has nothing to do with smell. They react suddenly for a few seconds, and then everything is normal again except for the building arousal of course ... I think it's somehow affecting some part of the nose that's sensitive to pheromones.

Hi meme371. That's a great post. I'm pretty sure this will help me a lot.